KUNSTFORUM International

Working student in International Marketing & Communications (m/f/d)

Publishing house: KUNSTFORUM International GmbH
Start: Immediately; remote

KUNSTFORUM International
We are a leading art magazine with a strong readership. Since 1973, KUNSTFORUM is published seven times a year in collaboration with guest editors, guest authors, and around 80 regular contributors. Together with our online platform, kunstforum.de, KUNSTFORUM is not only always up to date, but also one of the most comprehensive sources of documentation and an indispensable research tool for the study of contemporary art.

As we continue to expand our international presence, we are looking for a creative and strong communicator to support our English-language marketing team, starting immediately.

What we offer:

- The opportunity to contribute to the planning and implementation of international marketing campaigns and to communicate with global media partners
- Insights into an exciting professional environment focused on contemporary art
- Hands-on experience with the operations of the most comprehensive German-language art magazine, covering a wide range of topics and areas of focus
- Complimentary copies of the latest KUNSTFORUM issues and access to the online archive
- Opportunities for free museum visits
- The chance to become part of a young, dynamic team
- Remote work is encouraged

You are a good fit for us if …:

- You are currently enrolled in a Master's degree program, preferably with a focus on marketing or a related field
- You speak English at a native level or have excellent, fluent English skills, both written and spoken. Good German skills are required for internal communication and coordination
- You have a strong interest in contemporary art
- You are flexible and available to work 16 hours per week
- You communicate with others in a friendly and open manner
- Ideally, you have previous experience in the art world, gallery sector, PR, or the cultural sector
- You are a reliable team player with a careful and structured approach to your work
- You bring creative ideas and enjoy thinking outside the box rather than simply following a set formula

How to apply: Please send your cover letter and CV by email to bewerbung@kunstforum.de.

Contact: Dr. Ann-Katrin Günzel, Editor-in-Chief